FEEDING MORE TOGETHER
2016 ANNUAL REPORT
Dear friends,

One of the things that has made the Akron-Canton Regional Foodbank successful in meeting community needs over the years is the collaborative culture that is at the core of all we do. This is an organization that was simply founded on the belief that we can do more when we work together.

In 2016, we put Foodbank 2020, our new strategic plan, into action. The central goal of this plan is to, for the first time, commit to providing enough meals to meet the needs of everyone in our region struggling with hunger.

We hope you’ll take a minute to revisit 2016 with us in this annual report and read more about our continuous work on Foodbank 2020. The goals we are striving to achieve in the next five years will be possible because of your support and commitment. Please know how grateful we are for your support and how valued you are.

The Foodbank is an institution of compassion for the hungry, sick and struggling—fueled by you, your time and your financial support. Our ability to do the work we do hinges upon public support, and we couldn’t do it without you.

Thank you for your continued support!

You make a difference.
At the Foodbank, we believe in a community where all people can live a healthy and hunger-free life.

It’s because of this belief that, together, with our network, we provided access to food for more than 23.8 million meals in 2016, reaching more families than ever before. From fostering collaboration to thinking innovatively, the Foodbank helps strengthen the network to collectively have the greatest impact for our local communities, and we did this by focusing on four main strategic goals as set forth in our strategic plan, Foodbank 2020.

Since launching the plan, the Akron-Canton Regional Foodbank has made great strides towards our ultimate goal of ending hunger in the communities we serve. We are proud to share stories of our progress.
“By joining forces, our combined organization will provide more food than ever before.”

FAITH BARBATO, FORMER EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF COMMUNITY HARVEST + NEW FOODBANKER
The Foodbank made significant strides in our efforts to source and distribute more food for the people we serve.

In 2014, the Stark Community Foundation commissioned a report to examine the future of food security and hunger-relief services in Stark County. Following recommendations from the report, the Stark County Hunger Task Force, Community Harvest and the Akron-Canton Regional Foodbank formed a group that began meeting regularly to determine potential opportunities for a stronger partnership.

As a result of those conversations, in 2016, the stage was set for the Foodbank and Community Harvest to be merged on January 1, 2017. The merger is a significant investment in food rescue in Stark County and will jump start related efforts in Summit and surrounding counties.

Community Harvest collects excess prepared and perishable food and donates it to community groups that serve families struggling with hunger. This simple concept that began with a goal of preventing food waste has evolved into a collaboration of numerous resources and agencies dedicated to helping those who are hungry.

Collaboration happens because organizations come together toward a common vision. In this case, hunger-relief was collaboration’s fuel that allowed our organizations to reach new heights, as one.
Produce provides a powerful catalyst for solving hunger.

In 2016, the Foodbank provided 8.4 million pounds of produce to the network. Fresh fruits and vegetables are essential to any balanced diet and greatly benefit the individuals we serve, like Stephanie’s family.

Stephanie, a recent graduate of Kent State University, is currently searching for a job. Because of health issues, the search has been harder than expected. She can’t stand for long periods of time, is hearing impaired and struggles with frequent seizures.

With lingering bills and the cost of raising her six-year-old and nine-year-old daughters, her family of four could barely make ends meet—until she found a food pantry close to her home. She is not only thankful for the fresh breads, produce and other food they receive—but thankful for the opportunity to provide her daughters with nutritious choices.

With the help from this food pantry, it takes a little of the pressure off of Stephanie’s family. She is looking forward to the day she can come to the pantry solely as a volunteer—to help others that find themselves in her current situation.
To further amplify the voices of those we serve, the Foodbank is doing pioneering work in the field of client empowerment through the power of listening.

In 2016, the Foodbank launched Voices, a pilot program for nationally-funded work aimed at collecting feedback from individuals in need of food assistance. The guiding principle of this work is to affirm those receiving food assistance as the experts of their own experience.

Beginning with eight hunger-relief programs, the Foodbank started to focus on learning from those served by partner programs and evaluating information gathered to make meaningful, systematic changes on how we serve the community. The hope of the Voices program is to give a “voice” to those who usually feel voiceless and to increase advocacy efforts to maximize the impact to the hunger-relief system as a whole.

Julie, Food & Building Manager at OPEN M, shares, “When people come to our pantry, they feel like they can’t say anything to us in regards to our program because they are just so grateful for the food. The Voices program breaks down those barriers and upholds the dignity towards our guests while letting them know people are willing to listen—and just how much we value their voice. In the past few months, we’ve received feedback like offering more diabetic-friendly items for our seniors—an issue that never came up before we began asking what’s important for our community.”
The Meal Gap is the difference between the number of meals that are needed by community members and the number of meals they can access. The Foodbank commits to reducing half of the meal gap in the communities it serves by 2020, and closing the meal gap by 2025.
Together, we can create a powerful partnership that can make a lasting difference in the lives of many.

We are incredibly fortunate to be able to partner with you in this cause, and we thank you for the opportunity to stand together, in support of those in need.

We recently asked a few volunteers and staff members not what they do or how they do it, but why they do it. “Why do you feel motivated to help those struggling with hunger on a daily basis?”

“When I first started in this work 20 years ago, there were only a handful of 30-million-pound food banks in the country. To be closing in on that mark now within our 8-county service area is a sign of what a community can do when it commits to an issue.” Dan Flowers

“Our Foodbank is one of our best community assets, serving friends and neighbors in need while providing an everyday example of the generosity and compassion of people who live in this region! I am proud to be a Foodbanker!” Jo Dangel

“I volunteer at the Foodbank because it makes my day brighter! The Foodbank staff is so passionate about helping others, and their passion is contagious! The work that is accomplished here is very rewarding, as a volunteer or employee; it’s evident in the positive, cheerful, caring environment created.” Chesla Purtilar

“I have been volunteering for seven years now, and I can say that I truly love being here at the Foodbank with my friends. After surviving two major heart attacks, it is my privilege to be able to help others.” Jim MacDonald
