I’m amazed by how many people are helped by this pantry. We really appreciate it and thank you.”

-MIKE

YOUR GENEROSITY HELPS PEOPLE LIKE MIKE

When Mike was a young man, he worked on boilers for the government, traveling frequently and exploring new cities. But at the mere age of 26, he was in a catastrophic car accident that impacted the rest of his life.

Mike was in a coma for 98 days suffering significant head trauma and was hospitalized for a year. In rehab, he had to learn how to walk and talk again. Though he lives independently, he has a difficult time getting around and still experiences mental health complications.

Twenty years later, Mike has a positive outlook on life, greets everyone with a smile, and doesn’t hesitate to remove his cap to show the large scar on his head.

But it can be difficult for Mike to make ends meet while living on a fixed income. He openly talks about needing to ‘scrimp’, save and adhere to a strict budget. Sometimes, he needs a little extra help to get him through the end of the month, and that’s when he visits his local pantry.

“I’ve met a lot of good people here. This place means a lot to me. It gets me through the last two weeks of the month when I need it.”

When reflecting on the generosity of others, Mike says, “There’s a lot of people who experience hunger in our community.”

“When we first started, we wanted to do more for our community in a tangible way,” says Pastor Brett. “We were adamant and passionate about feeding people and restoring their dignity, offering a hand up, not a handout.”

The pantry used to serve families once a month, but because of its partnership with the Akron-Canton Regional Foodbank, it has increased its capacity and now serves families every Thursday. Food programs include regular pantry days, serving 65-70 families, and a large Direct Distribution in which thousands of pounds of food are distributed in a few hours to 125 families.

“There’s no way we could exist without our ongoing partnership with the Foodbank. We could not afford to do what we do without them,” said Brett. Last year, it helped provide access to nearly 92,000 meals for the families it serves.

Pastor Brett explains that many of the individuals and families served live right above the threshold to receive government assistance, meaning they make too much to receive Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program benefits, and yet, not enough to fully provide for their families.

“Working with the pantry has really changed my perceptions on hunger and who is hungry,” explained Tammy, food pantry director. “We serve families who have unexpectedly lost jobs, grandparents raising grandkids, families with no transportation access, and people who need help just for a short while.”

“There are kids simply wanting apples and oranges – just asking for the basics. No one should go hungry.”

Because of your support, the Foodbank continues to partner with organizations making a tremendous impact in the neighborhoods where people need food.
